WHAT'S AT CAMP

- affordable food
- a weatherproof area for meetings and events

- a beautiful park

WHAT TO BRING

- a tent
- a sleeping bag
- cup, plate and cutlery
- ID card and/or passport

- health card

- enthusiasm

WHAT NOT TO BRING

- excessive amounts of direct-action equipment
- the camp is not the best place for non human animals
- drugs...don't abuse

KITCHEN

At camp there is a social vegan kitchen. It's open every day for lunch and dinner. Kitchen is self-organized and run by volunteers, and if you like to help, just show up. Food served comes from local farmers. Some of them are part of a national network of small communities fighting for food autonomy.

Our fight against Expo2015 and its hypocritical proposals about food economy starts right at camp, where all of us are giving an example about the meaning of being in control on our own food.

That's the reason why we cook and eat all together at camp: regaining control on nutrition is the beginning of the resistance we build daily. The kitchen is in contrast to the foundations of capitalism, it's free from cruelty on human and non human animals, and it is sustainable.

CAMP POLICY

The camp is a liberated community space. Anyone is free to express him/herself and interactions among people are welcome. Sharing and respect are consciously carried out in order to make everybody feel safe, confident and relaxed. To be fine, always consider the others. To receive attention, pay attention. My well-being depends on you, above anything else.

Avoid anything that could make someone uncomfortable with his or her gender, sex, sexual orientation, ethnic origin, age, physical or linguistic abilities.

Respect nature and everyone at camp. Don't abuse drugs or alcohol. Feeling comfortable one another is a responsibility we all share.
